THE HOME PAPER

SAY!

(By CHARLES J. ARNOLD)

Here it is: "Clinton hunter killed near Brazil" and the hunting season really does not begin until next Thursday.

Some of the fellows have a new name for the shack built on the southeast corner of the court house lawn, which is to shelter the Memorial monument during its erection. The new name is "The Republican Court House." It is pointed out that the Republicans have been wanting a court house here for many years and that this is a golden opportunity to give them one. E. R. Bartley, "Postmaster," is in charge of the new Court House and will conduct there an "invisible government," it is said.

A. G. Brown of the First National Bank, chairman of the Indiana Bankers' Association Protective committee was called from his bed Friday night by the sounding of the burglar alarm at the bank. "Heavily armed" Mr. Brown hurried to the bank only to find that the robbers, if any, had left and the alarm still doing vigorous duty. It took Mr. Brown most of the night to get the alarm quieted. This morning he was placing all the blame on a "short circuit" and is apologizing to the robbers if any.

With football as an early season sport, the Greencastle High School basketball players will get into the game a little later than many Indiana High Schools which do not have football. But in basketball it is not always the early bird which gets the worm. Coach Bausman is sure to produce another one of his winning combinations and Greencastle no doubt will have a basketball aggregation of which it will be proud. And speaking of football, what is the matter with G. H. S. It certainly has played a creditable schedule.

That the Greencastle banks, in starting Thrift Clubs in the public schools a few years ago, started a mighty worthy project is evidenced by the interest of the school children these days. Each Thursday they never forget that it is bank day and they most enthusiastically watch their deposits grow. Many a nickel or dime, which in former years was spent for candy is now carefully saved for "bank day". This method of teaching thrift among the youngsters is proving effective and teaching the youth the real value of saving. About the only ones who are suffering are the candy merchants.

How far can a hairspring spring? No kidding! The hairspring holds the long distance record for financial springing. No stranger, not hand spring nor back springing, but just plain financial springing.

Here's the answer: Five dollars worth of steel when properly handled can eventually produce 84,000 tiny hairsprings worth $30,000 worth $30,000 wholesale, according to Warner S. Hays, secretary of the Clock Manufacturers Association of America.

Fires were builded Monday morning in the shed which will shelter the War Memorial monument during its erection and several masons are on the job to erect the base. It will not be long until the monument will be erected and a fitting memorial to the county's war heroes unveiled.

DePauw lost Saturday but there was glory in their defeat. Minus the services of Captain Anderson and several of the first spring players who are out with injuries the Tigers fought a game fight and gave the Kentuckians a hard fight.

Minnesota ties Notre Dame. Can you imagine it. But at that Notre Dame was not defeated.

Several of the Greencastle hunters are planning to spend Thursday in the woods, that being the first day of the quail shooting season. Lets hope that they shoot quail, if anything and not themselves.

It takes more than cold weather to stop the golfers. Several braved the chill winds Sunday and chased the elusive ball around the country club course.

TAKES HER LIPSTICK

PARIS, Nov. 7.—(INS)—Ruth Elder is taking her famous lip-stick back to America with her, and is not presenting it to the aviation museum at Le Bourget as reported.

"I wouldn't give that lipstick to a soul," said Miss Elder. "It is going back to New York with me, because it and the key to the cabin of 'The American Girl' are my most precious souvenirs."

COOLIDGE ASSURED MANTLE

Hoover And Hughes Do Not Have Enough "Magnetic Appeal" Says Speaker

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—(INS)—Evans Woollen, Indianapolis banker, today was hailed as "the best bet of the Democratic party" for the presidential nomination in 1928, by Louis Ludlow, native Hoosier and president of the National Press Club at Washington.

Ludlow is in Indianapolis to fulfill a series of speaking engagements. "If Evans Woollen were in the Whitehouse, we would have a president who speaks the language of humanity, a worthy successor to Woodrow Wilson and Thomas Jefferson," Ludlow said.

"It would be rash to predict Woollen's nomination," Ludlow said, "because anything can happen under the two-thirds rule. Woollen, however, is under close inspection by the southern leaders of the party."

President Coolidge, according to Ludlow, is assured of the Republican mantle, unless he refuses to permit himself to be nominated.

Other Republican candidates were summarized by Ludlow like this: Charles Dawes, a picturesque candidate, will appeal to the imagination of the people and please both financiers and the average voter.

Governor Lowden, of Illinois, will be short lived as a candidate. Willis, of Ohio, and Curtis, of Kansas, are mere "window dressing."

SCHOOL VACATION DATES FIXED MONDAY

VALUABLE WRIST WATCH AND JELLY TAKEN FROM RESIDENCE NORTHEAST OF THE CITY—LOSS DISCOVERED SATURDAY

The loss was discovered Saturday by Mrs. Albin. According to the Albin family the thief has now taken more than $1000 worth of property from the home. Recently some clothing was taken and later found only to again be stolen last week. The same person is suspected of all the thefts.

JAPANESE GROWING IN STATURE DUE TO DIET

By International News Service TOKYO.—The "small Japanese" are gaining steadily in height, due to their change in diet, according to statistics published by the Ministry of Education, covering the years from 1902 to 1920.

The figures show that the average height for Japanese girls has increased one inch in that period, and of boys seventeenths of an inch.

The notable increase in the average height of girls is attributed to physical education now taught in all girls' schools.

FARM BUREAU INCORPORATED ON SATURDAY

COOPERATIVE ASSOCIATION FORMED AT MEETING OF FARM BUREAU DIRECTORS SATURDAY—ARTICLES FILED WITH SECRETARY OF STATE

A Putnam County Farmers Co-operative Association was formed at a meeting of Putnam County Farm Bureau directors in the Court House Saturday and articles of incorporation for the Association were to be filed with the Secretary of State Monday.

PENAL FARM INMATE IS BURIED AT INDIANA HARBOR

The body of John Sirbu, age 37 years, penal farm inmate, who died at the Indiana State Farm, last Friday of pneumonia, was sent to his home in Indiana Harbor, Sunday, by Charles Rector, where it will be buried by friends.

Sirbu is a native of Roumania where his parents still reside. He has no relatives in this country. He was sentenced to the farm from Indiana Harbor, it was said.

CALL PUBLIC UTILITY MEN BEFORE JURY

NOTABLE WITNESSES CALLED

Similar Attempt Was Made One Year Ago By Alvan J. Rucker—Followed by Libel Suit

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—(INS)—The arraignment of Governor Ed Jackson and his three co-defendants on charges of bribery on which they were indicted by the Marion County grand jury on September 9th today was postponed until 9 a. m. Wednesday, because of a hitch in the selection of a special judge to try the cases.

Criminal Court Judge James A. Collins announced it would be necessary for him to select an entirely new list of three judges Wednesday since Circuit Court Judge Jere West of Crawfordsville, declined to be one of the three judges from whom the presiding judge for the governor's trial was to have been named today.

Meanwhile the Marion County grand jury and the special county prosecutors turned their attention to sensational charges of illegal relations between large public utilities and the state government.

The announcement of Judge Collins will remove Grant Crumpacker, of Valparaiso, judge of the Porter circuit court, and Carl Morrow, of Anderson, judge of the Madison circuit court, from the list of possible judges.

From the new list of three names the state will strike off one, the defense one, and the survivor will be the special judge.

A notable group of witnesses had been summoned today to testify in connection with the alleged utility-government combination. Included were:

Former Governor James P. Goodrich, owner of a number of utilities. Frank Wampler, former member of the State public service commission and formerly connected with the Indiana Bell Telephone Company.

Clyde A. Walb, Indiana Republican State chairman. Luke W. Duffy, now connected with the public service commission, a farm bloc leader and formerly a State Senator.

Donald Goss, former expert utilities writer for the Indianapolis News. Wayne Guthrie, former State House reporter and now assistant city editor of the News.

Frank Prince, who developed most of the political corruption evidence as a reporter for the Indianapolis Times.

Anti-utility leaders during the last Legislature contended that a proper investigation would reveal that a condition similar to that revealed in Illinois by United States Senator James A. Reed has existed in Indiana.

Both Harman and Jameison were arrested Sunday by Sheriff Edward Elteljorge and lodged in the County Jail to await a hearing before Judge James P. Hughes. Charges were filed against them by Jasper N. Dalby, juvenile officer.

Harman has been in difficulties with local authorities before.

CRAWLS HALF MILE WITH CRUSHED LEG

WABASH, Ind., Nov. 7.—(INS)—His right leg badly crushed, when a Chesapeake and Ohio passenger train demolished his automobile, R. D. Pond, of this city, crawled half a mile to a farm-house for assistance.

The crew of the train was unaware the machine had been hit and the train never stopped.

SERIES OF CAR THEFTS LAID TO JOYRIDERS

AUTOMOBILES TAKEN IN CRAWFORDSVILLE, GREENCASTLE, SPENCER AND AGAIN IN THIS CITY OVER WEEK END—ALL RECOVERED

A series of automobile thefts in Crawfordsville, Greencastle and Spencer over the week end, were laid to a joyrider Monday, after a check-up by police of this city, which resulted in the locating of all the cars which had been abandoned.

A Chevrolet car, belonging to Calvin Terry of Ladoga, was stolen in Crawfordsville Saturday night and found in this city by night police on south Indiana street.

Near the same location the thief took another Chevrolet belonging to Niles York, of Limesdale, Sheriff Edward Elteljorge was notified Monday morning that this car had been found in Bloomington.

An Essex coach belonging to J. G. Pierson, of Spencer, was found on Spring avenue Monday by Marshal Dave Braden. Near the same place found in front of the Nazarene church a Chevrolet roadster belonging to J. J. Kauble, Justice of the Peace and meat dealer, was stolen Sunday evening. This car was later recovered in Crawfordsville.

Both the local Sheriff and David Braden believe that the series of thefts were committed by a joy-rider or group of students who made the round trip from Crawfordsville to Bloomington and back in stolen cars. None of the cars were damaged.

ANNIVERSARY WEEK CLOSES SUNDAY NIGHT

DR. H. C. ARMSTRONG GIVES SPLENDID SERMON IN MORNING—REV. BRUNER EXPLAINS WHAT CHURCH DOES FOR VARIOUS GROUPS

The week of special Seventy-fifth Anniversary services came to a close last night when a splendid crowd assembled for the young people's service. Rev. B. H. Bruner, pastor of the Church, introduced representatives from the various children and young people's groups in the Church and explained what the Church was trying to do for these groups. He pointed out the fact that one of the greatest hindrances in the way of any program for children and youth is the neglect and indifference of the parents. The most demoralizing factor in the Bible School, he declared, is the parent who drags the children away from the Bible School on Sunday to go joy riding or make some visit. He also said one of the biggest problems the church faced in dealing with the young people and especially those of High School age, was a group of boys in Greencastle who never go to church and who hang around the Church on Sunday evenings trying to entice the girls to go auto riding with them.

One of the interesting features of both the morning and evening services was the exhibition of a little

FLOOD WATERS LEAVE RISING TOLL IN WAKE

MAY CONSCRIPT ALL "IDLERS"

Rehabilitation Of Devastated Regions Begin—Wall of Water Rushes Toward Connecticut

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—(INS)—As the estimated death list neared 150 persons in the New England flood disaster, the menace of disease, starvation and fire loomed over the stricken area, despite news that the waters were receding.

The town of Ludlow, Vt., home town of attorney general John G. Sargent, was reported saved from destruction by fire owing to a providential shift in the wind.

Throughout the flood region, the collapse of the water mains feeding the fire fighting systems heightened the danger from fires.

Typhoid fever has broken out in several Vermont towns, according to reports received here.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 7.—(INS)—The mad floods of upper New England have passed—but as they moved southward and east to the sea today, Connecticut, already lashed by advance freshets, was due to feel the crest of the mighty wall of water which has wreaked such havoc in other New England states.

Behind the waters today is a mounting list of dead, now estimated at 125 and a hundred million dollars in wreckage. Snow has come bringing new peril of the elements to the northern valleys where manpower is being conscripted to rehabilitate the devastated regions and to the hills where other countless thousands, unsheltered seek safety from the raging waters.

By edict of Governor Weeks and committees appointed to conserve rations until roads have been patched up and new supplies arrive only half a loaf of bread a day is allowed for each person.

Gasoline is at a premium. It is being rationed for commercial vehicles and to trucks engaged in relief work, while pleasure cars are denied any. Following complaint of Massachusetts state police and Vermont workers that sightseers making their way over renewed roads, were hampering workers engaged in washout and blocking trucks, Governor Weeks of Vermont took under advisement a plan for drafting all "idlers" and men who enter the state without particular business, for the work of rehabilitation.

Vermont—More than half of the state flood swept, at least 125 dead, 50,000 homeless, with freshets subsiding and work on rebuilding begun.

Massachusetts—Untold millions in property damage, one town completely wiped out, 10,000 homeless as crest of Connecticut River flood passes through Springfield.

Connecticut—Already battered to damage of millions in first onslaughts of freshets, menaced by crest of flood rushing down Connecticut River.

New Hampshire—Towns buried beneath water, landslides and northern part of state still menaced by freshets.

Rhode Island—Almost back to normal as Blackstone and other rivers subside after causing great damage.

Maine—Swept by gales as well as floods, nearly back to normal.

All of the western and northern part of New England is still crippled in lines of communication. Patchwork telegraph and telephone service is barely able to handle official messages. Rail damage will reach $25,000,000 and in many instances will not be restored for weeks, while it will never be restored in other districts. At least another $15,000,000 damage has been done to highways.

NO ARMISTICE

Armistice Day is being celebrated today throughout the civilized world and few there are who will not pause in their daily task and consider the meaning of the anniversary. War is done. Except for little wars, the world is at peace. The nations are happy because of that. But—

Theodore Roosevelt, on an Armistice Day, once said:

"Unquestionably one of the real afflictions that has come to the soldiers as a result of the World War is tuberculosis. All over the nation I see men suffering therefrom. We must meet this menace with as firm a determination to conquer it as we had when we met our enemies in the World War.

"In 1924 more Americans died from tuberculosis than were killed in action during the War. There is a difference between the war on which we must embark and the World War. In this war there must be no armistice. We must fight until tuberculosis is only a memory."

And so, as we celebrate Armistice Day, we must gird ourselves for a war upon an enemy that is close at hand—always ready to spring. Our allies, thank Heaven, already are standing by our side—shoulder to shoulder! They are the Tuberculosis Associations! About 1,400 of them throughout the United States. Ninety in Indiana—where their fight against the "white plague," under the direction of the Indiana Tuberculosis Association has been eminently successful thus far. The cooperation of the entire citizenship is needed to carry on the organized struggle against the disease in this state in 1928. Let's dedicate this great day—Armistice Day—to continuing battle against another enemy—tuberculosis! We'll win that war, too!

HAS GOOD HEALTH
SINCE STOMACH
TROUBLE IS GONE

Says Konjola Changed Her Entire
Physical Condition

MRS. CARRIE LOCKHART

"Indigestion was my greatest trouble," said Mrs. Carrie Lockhart, 857 S. Rybolt St., Indianapolis, Ind. "Gas would form in my stomach and I became so terribly bloated that I could hardly breathe. My throat was raw and irritated, owing to undigested food, which would rise in my throat. Nearly everything I ate would sour and ferment, so my food did me no good at all. My blood was also in a bad condition and this caused my skin to break out.

"Konjola has changed my whole physical condition so that my indigestion is better than it has been in years. I never bloated up with gas or have indigestion pains any more, and bits of food no longer rise in my throat. I have a much better appetite and my skin has cleared up wonderfully and I seem to feel good all the time. I recommend this medicine to all who suffer."

HOOSIER HARVEST SEASON IS HEALTHFUL PERIOD

"Apples and artists, cider and cheer leaders, fruits and football, nature students and nuts, hunters and hazy skies, pumpkins and poets, pawpaws and politics combine annually in one merry, breezy whirl to make the harvest season in Hoosierland one of the most joyful and healthful events of all the year." Thus reads the weekly bulletin of the Publicity Bureau of the Indiana State Medical Association which was issued today.

"From time immemorial in all ages and in all countries, the harvest season always has been a joyful and healthful period of the year, and nothing so much stirs the pride of a Hoosier as thoughts of his own Indiana in autumn time," continues the bulletin. "In fact, when a homesick Hoosier begins to orate on the fall time glories of his own, his native state, he will even tune out a dozen California climate propagandists although they broadcast on wide wave lengths.

"Switzerland with its St. Moritz, and Florida with its Miami and Palm Beach are better known for their winter season, Merrie England gets all the glory for its springtime, and northern Michigan claims popularity in the summer months when the Hoosier thermometer sets altitude records, but few spots in the world can compare to Indiana in the fall—at least to the native Hoosier. The following lines written by Sarah T. Bolton seem especially appropriate at this season.

"His wind of heaven never fanned,
 The circling sunlight never spanned
 The border of a fairer land

"So, the Indiana State Medical Association, composed of 2,700 of the leading physicians of the state, advises every Hoosier to take advantage of these joyous days and harvest his health crop for this season. Break away from the smog-filled cities with their maddening rush, take in a football game or two, get out into the country where the cider presses over all the state are hitting on high, gather a store of walnuts for the winter months, go forth into the country and bring home a pumpkin of your own to turn into a Jack-o-Lantern and 'pumpkin' pie. The natural splendor, primitive beauty and health restoring freshness of Indiana's state parks cannot be surpassed at this season of the year. The Medical Association can join with the State Conservation Department in recommending an autumn outing at Turkey Run, McCormick's Creek Canyon, Clifty Falls or any one of the other state parks or reservations for no one knows better than those who practice scientific medicine that nature, the great physician and healer, often will do more for frazzled nerves and tired bodies than all the science in the world.

So go to the playgrounds which the state has set aside for you, or take your flivver out on a health scouting tour for yourself, and above all, don't forget that there is no better time than during this harvest period to have your family physician give you a thorough annual physical examination and check-up on your bodily bookkeeping so your health harvest may be bountiful this coming year."

FAMOUS JOCKEY BANNED
FROM RACING TRACKS

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—(INS)—The riding days of Earl Sande, one of the world's premier jockeys, are over for the time being at least.

The Maryland Racing Commission today revoked Sande's license on charges of foul riding in yesterday's $55,000 Pimlico Futurity, and this action means that Sande is not only barred from Maryland tracks, but through inter-agreements with other tracks, is also barred from accepting mounts in the United States, Canada or Mexico.

VENICE FLYER SETS NEW SEAPLANE WORLD'S RECORD

VENICE, Nov. 5.—(INS)—Major Mario De Bernadi, winner of the Schneider cup in America two years ago, has established a new seaplane speed record of 313 miles and 820 yards an hour, beating the old record of 282 miles an hour made by Lieut. Sidney N. Webster, of England, winner of the Schneider cup this year.

Bernadi, who made his flight yesterday, averaged 477 kilometres and 876 metres, or 296 miles and 1,460 yards an hour, which in itself is a world record, over a two mile lap, but at times the aviators attained a speed of 313 miles and 820 yards.

The flight was made over the Schneider cup course.

PRINCESS ANNE OF FRANCE
BRIDE OF PRINCE PUGLIE

NAPLES, Nov. 5.—(INS)—Amid pomp and ceremony reminiscent of the days when her Bourbon ancestors ruled this city, Princess Anne, of France, today became the bride of Prince Puglie, a royal prince of the House of Savoy, ruling house of Italy.

Before reigning kings, former kings and queens, dukes and duchesses, many royal princesses and princes, governmental dignitaries, ambassadors, and Vatican officials, the nuptial ceremonies of the daughter of the pretender to the French throne officiated.

Fifty thousand persons packed Plebiscite square, where special stands were erected, to witness the brilliant procession as it passed from the palace of the bridegroom's father to the royal palace, where the civil ceremony was officiated, and then from the royal palace to the church of San Francesco De Paolo, where the religious ceremony took place.

The list of attending royalty at the wedding reads like several pages from the Almanach De Gotha. Three ruling kings, in the persons of Victor Emmanuel, of Italy, Alfonso, of Spain, and Boris, of Bulgaria, head the list. Queen Elena, of Italy, was also to have been present, but did not attend due to the recent death of her sister, Princess Vera, of Montenegro. Next on the list are the Duke and Duchess of Guise of the House of Bourbon-Orleans, Prince Phillip of Hesse, Prince Paul of Greece, Archduchess Immaculate of Austria, Ex-Queen Amelie of Portugal, Princess Marie Jose of Belgium and Princess Margaret of Denmark.

Also in the royal assemblage were all the princes of the House of Savoy and representatives of the highest Italian aristocracy.

SEEK WAY TO REVIVE
PERSONS WHO HAVE BEEN ELECTROCUTED

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 7.—Prof. C. J. Wiggers, head of the department of physiology at Western reserve University, and one of the foremost authorities in the country on the action and peculiarities of the human heart, is seeking a method by which it will be possible to resuscitate persons who have been "killed" by electric shock.

A special fund has been set aside for Prof. Wiggers' research and he is now perfecting apparatus with which he hopes to make motion pictures of heart beats.

Prof. Wiggers explained that an electric shock may cause death in either two ways. Death may result from cessation of respiration or of the heart action, induced by the shock. In case where breathing is stopped, the victim may be revived by a pulmotor or artificial respiration but science has not yet discovered a means for causing the heart to resume beating once it has come to a standstill.

If he can secure motion pictures of the heart action, Prof. Wiggers will be enabled to make a careful, detailed study of the muscular activity involved, on the basis of which he hopes to find a solution to the problem. Such a remedy might also revive persons who have "died" of sudden heart attacks he believes.

COOLIDGE IS PICK OF THE REPUBLICANS

LOUIS LUDLOW IN ADDRESS TO WOMAN'S PRESS CLUB IN INDIANAPOLIS, SAYS THAT MASTER POLITICIANS WILL SEE THAT PRESIDENT IS RE-NOMINATED

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., November 7.—That the master politicians of the Republican party already have picked President Coolidge as the Republican presidential candidate next year and that the President's renomination is certain unless he comes out in another statement positively forbidding the use of his name was asserted here today by Louis Ludlow, Washington correspondent and president of the National Press Club, who said his information had come to him from Republican leaders who are "head-over-heels" in the movement, in an address before the Women's Press Club of Indiana.

The plan Mr. Ludlow said is to fill the convention with a large mass of uninstructed delegates and delegates instructed for favorite sons, all of whom will be delivered to Coolidge when the word comes. His statement follows:

"Those who imagine that President Coolidge has been eliminated from the 1928 presidential equation have another guess coming.

The master politicians of the Republican party already have picked the next Republican presidential candidate. They have chosen Calvin Coolidge. The journeymen and helpers in the camp have not yet been advised of the decision of the master politicians but they will know in due time. A community of leadership within the Republican party is working with precision and certainty to bring about the renomination of the president. The die is cast; the machinery is in motion. There may not be a hard-and-fast understanding among the master politicians, or any specific agreement at all, but they are driving ahead with a common inspiration and a common purpose to make President Coolidge his own successor for another four-year term.

"Their plan is to fill the convention with a large body of uninstructed delegates and with delegates instructed for favorite sons. This combined mass of delegates is to be held for delivery to Coolidge. The plan contemplates that, as far as possible, all delegates shall be sent to the convention uninstructed, but wherever an active presidential candidate invades or threatens to invade a state the master politicians who are supporting Coolidge will bring out a favorite son of that state who will hold the state delegation intact until such times as Coolidge's name is sprung in the convention when the delegation will flop to Coolidge. This explains the candidacy of Senator Curtis of Kansas, which is designed to bar Lowden out of Kansas and Colorado and make the delegates of those state deliverable to Coolidge. It also explains numerous other budding 'favorite son' candidacies.

"The main reason the master politicians want Coolidge nominated is the certainty they feel that he would be elected. They also are actuated by the selfish interests of numerous prospective candidates for the Senate and House who feel that they could win by clinging to Coolidge's coat tails. Republican politicians as pawns all along the line including state candidates everywhere fear the turmoil that would be created by throwing the situation open and they look to Coolidge as a life-saver. The master politicians say Coolidge is the only man in the Republican party who can be depended upon to carry New York against Al Smith. They admit that Hughes might, but they insist Coolidge would.

"The activities of the rival aspirants for the Republican presidential nomination will subside when they learn that there is no Coolidge political estate to be administered. The corpse isn't dead, President Coolidge will be renominated as surely as tomorrow succeeds today unless—mark this word 'unless'—he takes himself out of it by a positive statement that he will not accept if nominated."

The remainder of Mr. Ludlow's address was a half serious, half humorous discussion of men and women with whom he has come in contact during an active newspaper career of thirty-five years, of which twenty-six have been spent in the Press Gallery at Washington. He bemoaned the passage of whiskers from American public life and said:

"The visitor in the United States senate these days does not get his money's worth when he looks down upon a bunch of peeled onions."

ATTORNEY GENERAL RULES THAT MARRIAGES CANNOT BE PROHIBITED—NEW CURE FOR DISEASE TO STAMP IT OUT WITHIN NEXT GENERATION

By International News Service
MANILA, P. I., Nov. 7.—Lepers cannot be forbidden to marry, rules the attorney general of the Philippine islands, replying to a request of the chief of the Cullon leper colony that the governor general issue an executive order prohibiting marriage among the leprosy patients of that colony.

Some 5,000 of the estimated 10,000 lepers in the Philippines have been collected by the government and isolated on the island of Cullon, in the southern Philippines. There they are allowed to live in their own homes and so far as possible follow the mode of living enjoyed in any Philippine community. Many of them are married and have children.

These children are free from the dread disease at birth but until the late General Wood became governor general of the Islands the boys and girls grew up in the home of their parents and eventually contracted leprosy. Now they are removed to an asylum near Manila where they are educated until adopted by relatives or are able to support themselves.

During the Wood administration the cure of leprosy became an established fact and over 1,000 have been discharged from the colony entirely well. Before this time leprosy was regarded as incurable and no objection was made to the inmates of the colony marrying and thus getting what happiness they could get out of life.

Now, however if a person with leprosy in its early stages, and therefore curable, marries with a patient who has had the disease for a number of years, both husband and wife run the risk of remaining incurable. Hence the agitation to prevent marriages between lepers.

Isolation of male and female patients may be resorted to if the legislature cannot be persuaded to adopt an anti-marriage law for lepers. At any rate the condition is but temporary as those now in the later stages of the disease should all be dead within five or ten years, and the new patients most of them, can be cured under the new scientific methods.

THIRTY-THREE COUNTIES IN INDIANA HAVE TAKEN UP FIGHT AND OTHERS HAVE EXPRESSED WILLINGNESS TO AID

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 7.—(INS)—Bovine tuberculosis in Indiana will be reduced to a minimum in 1930 if the present program is maintained, according to State Veterinarian F. H. Brown, speaking at a session of the Purdue university short course in veterinary work.

Thirty-three counties in the state have taken up the fight against the disease and twelve others have expressed their willingness to aid, Brown said.

Sanitary control of chicken diseases also is being practiced through the state, with profit to the poultry raisers, according to Brown.

ODD AUTO RACE
HAS BIG PRIZE
FOR STOCK CAR

24-HOUR EVENT WILL BE STAGED AT INDIANAPOLIS THIS MONTH—$25,000 PRIZE TO SPUR CHAMPIONSHIP CONTEST ON BIG SPEEDWAY

By EUGESNE J. CADOU
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 7.—One of the most unique races in the history of the automotive world will be staged at the famous Speedway here when the Safety Stutz which won the stock car speed championship of the United States will contest with a Bolongne type of Hispana Suiza, said to be the fastest stock car of Europe, for the world's stock car championship.

The match race with a prize of $25,000 will be a 24-hour event and will be held the latter part of November, according to Stutz Motor Company officials.

The Hispana Suiza Company has designated as drivers for the track classic, Major H. O. D. Seagrave, famous British driver who hung up a world's record of 203.79 miles an hour in a speed test at Daytona Beach Florida six months ago and Charles T. Weymann, of Paris, who designated the Weymann motor body and who has a brilliant race record.

Gil Anderson veteran Speedway driver will pilot the Stutz and an effort is being made to induce Frank Lockhart, winner of the 1926 Speedway race to be alternate driver.

Because of the uncertainty of the weather in Indiana during the latter part of November, no definite date for the race will be announced for some time.

The challenge of the American car to the speediest overseas motor vehicle was carried by F. E. Moskovsky, presidents of the Stutz Company, who went to Europe to arrange the contest shortly after the Stutz car had won first, second and third places in the recent stock car races at Atlantic City, N. J., and Charlotte, N. C.

Stock car racing, which in pioneer days of the sport was popular, had become nearly obsolete with the specialization on high powered racing models. Likewise, the proficiency of the American racing car builders had nearly eliminated the list of European automobiles entered in the annual Speedway races.

Hence, the novel stock car contest is expected to attract the attention of the whole motor world.

Meanwhile, Lockhart is working hard to wrest the motor speed laurels from Major Seagrave by building at the Stutz factory here a car which he hopes will travel faster than the 203.79 miles an hour at which the Englishman split the breezes.

DOBBIN'S FUTURE ASSURED
SAYS DR. T. A. SIGLER

There is no truth in the rumor horses are so scarce in Detroit that whenever one dies Henry Ford obtains the carcass and has it stuffed and placed in a museum along with the old-fashioned vehicles he does collect. In fact, Dr. Thomas A. Sigler, president of the American Veterinary Medical association, recently said that everywhere there will be an increased demand for horses in the "rebirth of agriculture" which is impending, since the farmer has found that even tractors and other motor implements on the farm cannot entirely take the place of the horse. Dr. Sigler further believes that "the horse has adjusted himself to the competition of the automobile," and that for certain kinds of work he will be supreme in spite of motors. It's very comforting to learn that, after all, we won't have to take the children to the zoo to look at a horse. Probably the only character that has now gone forever is the faithful "Spark Plug" of courting days in the long ago, when the reins could be wound around the whip socket and both a young man's arms were free for the business in hand.—Detroit Free Press.

HUNTERS FIND FOXES, CATS BUT NO RABBITS

PETERSBURG, Ind., Nov. 6.—Hunters hunting in Lockhart and Monroe townships, in southern Pike county, report large numbers of foxes and common house cats and a great scarcity of rabbits.

The foxes have been increasing in southern Pike county since the big coal stripping companies have started operations. Hundreds of acres of land which have been stripped of coal make excellent hiding places for foxes, and the animals have been increasing so rapidly that they are nearly as numerous as rabbits. The foxes live on young rabbits and have almost cleaned them out of that section of the country.

The house cats are becoming wild and also live on young rabbits. They were abandoned by farmers who sold their land to the coal stripping companies, moved away and allowed the animals to remain behind.

The total of licenses issued during 1927 was 54,148 more than those issued during the fiscal year 1926. Non-resident fishermen paid for 3,255 fewer licenses than in 1926, largely due to the increase in cost of the licenses from $1 to $2.25, according to Mannfeld.

Resident and non-resident hunting and fishing licenses registered a total increase of 50,987 over the preceding year in 1927.

FRANKLIN STREET GARAGE

"Electricity has added to the wealth of the nation"

Says Hon. Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of Maryland

"In your development of cheap power you have added immeasurably to the wealth of the nation; and it is not old wealth taken from others by the process of trade, but new wealth wrung from the treasure house of nature." *

ELECTRICITY has become the most universally useful force the world has ever known. This result has not been obtained merely by converting coal and water into electrical energy. Far-sighted planning, and the success of the principle of individual initiative in the management of power companies are responsible.

The power companies have anticipated the needs for electrical service. They have built power plants and transmission lines in advance of rapidly growing demands. Through interconnected lines an abundance of power has been brought to cities, towns, villages and farms.

Meanwhile the public has accepted electrical service, paving the way for improvements and encouraging the invention and production of a great variety of useful electrical devices. Three million investors own power company securities. Sixteen million homes and one hundred and fifty thousand factories are using electrical service. By continued support of the American principle of individual initiative, and through the use of more labor-saving electrical equipment, the whole public has been benefited by improved service and reduced rates.

The electrical business under individual initiative and government regulation, supported by public acceptance, has increased the wealth, comfort and happiness of the whole nation. The full development of an electrical age can be safeguarded in its future growth by continued support of these principles.

SYNOPSIS

A dispute over the ownership of an artificial rose, salvaged from the refuse heaps of The Dump, strikes up a friendship between Mickey Grogan and Susan Dale, waifs of the city wastelands. Tooth, a kind and philosophical cripple, interferes and settled their differences by arbitration, but Susan has shown enough of her militant spirit to win the everlasting admiration of ten-year-old Mickey who hitherto had held her in scorn. Mickey proposes a business partnership and Susan readily accepts. He is to continue at his task of raking the debris for discarded "pretties" and she is to be the salesman. Mickey, before they start to work, explains to her the honor code of The Dump.

Unexpectedly, Mickey's foot stumbled on something hard in one of the rubbish heaps. He stooped and dug out an old Colt revolver. He was beside himself with excitement, for it is not every day that such a magnificent find is dug up out of The Dump. "Holy Gee!" he called. "Look at this Aunt Maria, would ya? I bet you could croak a guy with this." Cocking the trigger, the boy pulled it and nearly went backwards from the force of the explosion. For a moment, Susan thought that her partner might be dead, and then she screamed. But she was greatly reassured when Mickey smiled. "No, I ain't dead, Susie. Feel my heart. Say, this is a fine gun, an' I'm goin' to keep it." And with an air of grave importance, he thrust the weapon into his coat pocket.

As the boy and girl reached the end of The Dump, and worked their way in and about the mounds like gray gnomes from another world, the whistle of a near-by factory whirled through the air, announcing the end of a working day.

"As long as they're a little faded ye kin have 'em fer twelve cents," he persisted. They were walking towards a mail-box and Mickey was thankful that she carried letters in her hand. God bless the mail-boxes of the world! "Ya kin have 'em fer ten cents," pleaded Mickey holding the flowers up as far as he could.

The girl stopped to mail her letters, and as she did so, Mickey went on with a gulp in his voice. "Bett' as how it's you, lady, I'll let ya have the flowers for five cents." Mickey thought of all the things to eat that five cents would buy. The girl slammed down the lid of the mail-box, and as she did so, for the first time looked down at the boy. Her face was youthful and pretty, and she had the loveliest blue eyes Mickey had ever seen. She opened her purse and brought forth a dime which she placed in the boy's hand.

"I'm afraid I ain't got any small change," Mickey faltered. "I don't usually carry around much chicken feed."

The girl smiled. "Never mind the change," she said. "The five cents extra is for your name." "It's Mickey Grogan," he said. "An' this here is Susan," indicating the little girl who had followed him. "Susan Dale. She's my partner, only she's just learnin' the business. I'm startin' her from the ground up. Say, lady, maybe if you tell me your name, I'll make you one of my steady customers."

"My name is Winifred Davidson," Mickey held up a hand that had not been washed in a good long while. "I'm happy to make yer acquaintance, I'm sure. An' so is Susie. Say, Susie, catch hold o' the lady's mitt an' give it a squeeze."

"I'll bet you could croak a guy with this."

Mickey swung sharply about and began unfastening the sack tied to his waist. Bringing forth the shoe-box, he rolled up the other treasures and hid them under the seat of a discarded automobile to be retrieved later. "Come on," he said to Susan. "Maybe we kin sell some of these flowers."

Susan wasn't to whom Mickey was going to sell the flowers, but she followed obediently and they reached the big gates of the factory through which struggled the many girls employed within. Mickey removed the lid off his box, disclosing the artificial flowers, and he removed several bouquets and thrust them into Susan's hands. "If ye kin sell some," he told her, "we'll be able to eat. I don't know how your stummik feels, but mine could stand a lot of fillin'." And Susan answered, "I wish flowers was good to eat."

Together they started through the crowds of girls, holding up their wares with a wistful insistence. "Flowers, lady? Flowers! All the men 'll be crazy about yer when they see ye got flowers. What is a lady without flowers? Why, she's nothin' at all. She's hardly a lady." They were in the shadow of the long, high factory wall. "Flowers, lady?" Mickey saw the numberless feet passing by, and they seemed to be stopping all over him and kicking him. There was not one hand to hold out a five cent piece. And all the time the crowd was thinning. Susan began to feel afraid. Never before had she felt so hungry. A slice of bread would have been a banquet to her. "Flowers! Flowers!" she called shrilly. "Ya gotta have a flower to be stylish."

They came to the end of the street and discovered that all the girls had vanished. Susan held out the flowers and, as silently, he put them back in the box. "Well," she said, fighting down her tears. "I don't really feel so hungry now. An' anyway, they say that eatin' too much ain't good for you."

"Say, and Mickey looked desperate, "I wouldn't mind havin' a little indignation at that." At that moment a young girl passed by. She wore the kind of patent-leather slippers that make the pavements shimmer with delight, and her silk stockings were sheer and lovely. Mickey stepped forward to follow her and held up a bunch of imitation forget-me-nots. "Flowers, lady!" and because she was well dressed, he put the price up another notch. "Only fifteen cents a bunch."

But the girl's hand made a negative gesture and her slippers twinkled on. Mickey followed.

"Gosh," said Susie. "I ain't smelt anything so sweet since I found an empty bottle of Mary Garden in The Dump." Winifred Davidson laughed and looked even prettier than she had before.

She was about to turn away when Mickey stopped her. "Hey, lady, you're forgettin' the ferget-me-nots." He held up the faded bouquet, and with true business instinct added, "I always gives no customers their money's worth, an' no charity asked."

At that moment, Mickey caught sight of a heavily-built, square-jawed man approaching from down the street. Quickly, he forced Winifred to take the bouquet, and then, without losing a moment's time, caught Susan by the hand and pulled her after him. "Say, Susie," he whispered, "it's old Marshall, the trust officer. If he catches us, our business 'll go into bankruptcy." Susie needed no further warning. The next instant, she and Mickey were running like fury, and in a moment they were out of view.

Winifred looked after them in some surprise. She smiled to herself at the fear that the trust officer had instilled in them, and was about to continue on her way when she felt her shoulder touched. Looking about she saw a big, gross-looking young man standing over her. The very set of his hat, the swagger of his walk told the world how pleased he was with himself. Girls passed by and glanced at him approvingly. He beamed condescendingly upon them, but reserved his more absorbed attention for Winifred. He was Al Neverson and was employed in the same factory with Winifred. But he was also a pugilist and was fond of relating his triumphs in the prize-ring to anyone who cared to listen.

"Say, Winnie," he said now, "I'm pretty good company on the way home. How about it?" Winifred had a very definite dislike of Al; and his grossness, his self-assurance were highly displeasing to her. "Don't bother, Al," she answered him, anxious to get away. "I don't mind going home alone. And besides, there are quite a number of things I've got to do."

"What things?" asked Al, unbelievably. It was obvious that the burly fellow was not going to let her get off easily. "How about tyin' on the feed bag, eh, Winifred?" He beamed down upon her quite evidently expecting her to burst into grateful tears at the suggestion. "I know of the swell-est little rest-oo-rant in this mansest village. Whatcha say?"

GEORGETOWN
DOWN TIGERS
BY TWO POINTS

DEPAUW'S AERIAL ATTACK FAILS
TO KEEP PACE WITH DRIVING
TACTICS OF KENTUCKY RIVALS
—METHODISTS ON SHORT END
OF 16-14 SCORE

GEORGETOWN, Ky., Nov. 5.—Two flashy points separated DePauw university Tigers from victory here this afternoon and the Georgetown Tigers came through on top by a 16-to-14 score in a game replete with thrills.

The battle of the Tigers was a vicious one, in which the ball carrying squad of Anderson and Lenoir for Georgetown outpointed the pass shooting combination of Scott to Messersmith for DePauw. Tenacity on the defense also counted for Georgetown as twice the Kentuckians held within the five-yard line.

The oval soaring between Scott and Messersmith accounted for both Indiana tallies after repeated drives had failed to gain through the Georgetown line. "Cuffy" Lenoir, half back crashed through the DePauw line almost at will and his dashes for twenty-five, twenty-seven and thirty-three yards led to Kentucky touchdowns.

Mills fumbled on DePauw's fifteen-yardline which accounted for a Georgetown tally, Anderson and Lenoir doing most of the driving. Lenoir got off a bad punt in the second period and DePauw recovered on Georgetown's twenty-five yard line. A pass Scott to Messersmith, netted the score and Scott dropped kicked for the extra point. The Scott to Messersmith combination accounted for the other DePauw counter in the third quarter. Two passes netted fifty yards but the Kentuckians held on their own eighty-yard line and kicked out of danger.

DePauw started the march again and a pass on the thirty-five yard line Scott to Messersmith, chalked up an other seven when Niergarth added the extra point.

DePauw held nobly on its one foot line in the final period after Carnes had booted a field goal and the Indians were in the lead, Georgetown took the ball on the thirty-five yard stripe and again started the march
